I think he told me that he sold what would be a total of thirty-six thousand dollars worth of property at the sale that afternoon. One poor fellow who had recently sold his farm bought all the lots that he could afford to buy, making the first payment down. Of course, the first payment was all we ever got and in most cases had to take back three-fourths of the lots and give them a deed to one-fourth. The first two lots I sold at Cudahy were sold at a price of fifteen hundred dollars for the two. I reported the sale on the phone to my brother John, and he said, You are a robber to take the money. But after we got the thing going there were quite a few sold at fifteen hundred dollars each...
