Excerpt: . . . consider the components, features, and processes that best suit the needs of their own communities and IAP youth, the implementation of the program must meet expressed policy and procedural requirements. Such requirements are central to the proper translation of theory and principles into practice. The first step in While the model implemented in any locale depends upon factors that character-the IAP development ize the local system, IAP policy and procedural requirements are defined by the three major program elements and five sub-elements that are essential to the process is to determine model. A discussion of each element follows with illustrations taken from cur-how a jurisdiction rently operating programs or approaches. carries out its aftercare responsibilities within Policies and procedures of the IAP model the broader context of juvenile corrections. Organizational factors and the external environment Correctional systems vary enormously across a number of dimensions, including the scale of the particular system, its ideological and philosophical orientation, its public and government support base, its structural characteristics, and the type and number of aftercare programs it offers. Factors related to the aftercare function include: Level of resources available for aftercare activities. Number of youth adjudicated delinquent and under the supervision of correctional authority. Urban versus rural distribution of population. State statutes and laws, legislative guidelines, and administrative rules relevant to aftercare. Reliance upon public versus private service provision. The organizational and bureaucratic configuration of aftercare. These factors will affect impl. . . This...
